FOREWORD

This book of genealogy grew out of the curiosity aroused by the rediscovery of the old family Bible of my great grandfather, Daniel Deane, of Petersham, Mass. The Vital Records of Petersham and Dedham, Mass., very quickly led back to the progenitor of the family, John Dean, of Dedham, who was born about 1650 and died in 1727.

As time permitted, I have attempted to obtain records of the lineal descendants of this ancestor. The results are far from complete, as many of the lines terminate in thin air for lack of the information required to bring them down to date. It is inevitable that more biographical information is available in my own particular line of descent than in the others--this is not evidence of lack of interest on my part, but rather a measure of the difficulty of obtaining data, and of the inherent reticence of people about their own doings.

Whatever may be the benefits derived from a knowledge of one's ancestors, I believe that the greatest benefit which can accrue from such a knowledge lies in contemplation of the aspirations of these ancestors, as revealed by their history, and of the heritage they have passed on down to us of the present time. In the three centuries covered by this book, we have seen people leave a settled civilization and emigrate to a virgin wilderness. In the earlier times of this interval, grain was cut by hand and threshed by pounding it by hand with a flail, homes were warmed by back-freezing open fireplaces fed with hand felled, hand cut, and hand split wood, cooking was done in big pots over an open wood fire, clothes were washed by scrubbing them by hand across a corrugated board in a tub of water, with soap made from grease and the lye dissolved out of wood ashes. A man's work then gained him as many cents as he now gets dollars.

Compare the life of those times with the machine powered present, when drudgery is banished at the touch of a button! Then ask, "What did these hard-working, long-working ancestors do that has resulted in passing down to us such a wonderful heritage?" Surely they left us more than the ingenuity that has developed our present mechanistic age.

Underlying all else, they have believed in, practiced, and fought for the principles and duties of national and individual freedom ---not the freedom that is so frequently debauched into "I'll get what I want, and to heck with all others," but the freedom of national life which recognizes that the individual prospers best when all prosper:-- in spirit, the application of the Golden Rule.

Over the centuries many enticing political schemes and -isms have been touted in this country---but by the good judgement of the electorate they have all been discarded and the nation has steadfastly hewed to the line of complete freedom, circumscribed only by the general welfare. May the citizens of this country be wise enough to continue in this path of progress, and not sell any of their birthrights for a mess of pottage!

This book would have been utterly impossible without the generous contributions of time and effort by many people who sent me data for publication. Notable among these are:

[1472] Faxon R. Dean, who furnished data on most of the children of [28] Faxon Dean and the complete line from [81] Orange Dean, unearthed a genealogy by [187i2] W. D. Kelley listing hundreds of descendants of [77] Samuel Dean, and contributed many items of interest and information from his researches into the dusty archives of the eastern part of the country.

[1602] Henry Martyn Dean, who supplied records running back to his ancestor [102] Joshua Dean, and covering the complete line of [225] John Dean.

[1802] Alfred H. Dean, who supplied all the data given on the descendants of [178] Colburn Dean.

[127c5] Cassie K. Turner, an adept genealogist, who contributed most of the data on descendants of [127] Delphos (Dean) Turner and confirmed all the descendants given for [42] John Dean.

[989a] Grace E. Doyle)
[990a] Mabel M. Anderson) who jointly brought down to date all the lines from [1480] Alice V. Deane) [587] Seneca F. Deane

Without the assistance of the above people, and of many, many others too numerous to mention, this book would be thin indeed.

As time and circumstance permit, I shall continue the effort to bring all the lines down to date, to the end of listing, if possible, all those who carry in their veins the blood of John Dean of Dedham. To this end I will be greatly pleased to receive correction of the errors which doubtless have crept into the book, and also any data in extension of any of the lines of descent.

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

The unrest in England which spurred the flood of emigration to the American Colonies in their early days grew out of the perennial struggles of the people against the autocratic power of their rulers. King Henry VIII, 1509-1547, not satisfied with his temporal power, had defied the authority of the Pope over matters of religion in England, and proclaimed himself the head of the Church of England. He used the utmost severity in forcing his authority upon the clergy, the bishops and the abbeys.

Edward VI, 1547-1553, followed Henry in his policies against all opponents of the concentration of power over the clergy in the Crown, and secured the adoption of the Forty-Two Articles of the Church of England, setting forth its beliefs and manner of operation.

He was succeeded by Mary I, who proceeded to persecute the Protestants, of whom she caused so many to be killed that she is recalled to-day as "Bloody Mary."

After five years, Elizabeth came to the throne (1558-1603). She devoted her attention more to the political and economic condition of her realm than to religious matters. England made great maritime progress, as witness the many voyages of discovery, and wide extension of her sea-borne commerce. English sailors, with an assist from a storm at sea, disposed of the "Invincible Armada" of Spain. The Elizabethan age made Englishmen feel very highly their own individual importance, and everyone took personal pride in the repulse of the Spaniards and the upholding of the Queen. She may have tyrannized over them as a woman, they defended her as men. Freedom of thought had brought new political ideas, and men talked much of the authority of Parliament, and their right to tax themselves through the agency of this Parliament. Elizabeth upheld the supremacy of the Crown as head of the Church, but tolerated rather than persecuted the opposition, although it was during her reign that the Act of 1593 was passed, requiring that "all persons above 16 years of age, who obstinately refuse to attend divine service at some Established Church, should be committed to prison without bail, until they should conform and make public confession of conformity" in terms prescribed by the statute itself. It was said that this Act, in its final result, peopled New England.

James I, already King of Scotland, and a Presbyterian, united two great Protestant realms when he succeeded Elizabeth (1603-1625). Hopes that relief from the iniquities of the Act of 1593 would be realized were grievously dashed when James himself said "I will make them conform themselves; or harry them out of the land, or else do more ---" There was growing in England a more extreme sect of Protestants, who objected to the ceremonious forms and the hierarchial system of bishops and clergy of the Church of England, and refused to believe in having an interpreter between themselves and their consciences. These came to be called Puritans.

Charles I came to the throne in 1625. In 1627 many people of large means refused to pay the "Ship Money Tax", or forced loan, of the King, on the constitutional grounds that it was not levied with the consent of Parliament. By 1629 Charles had summoned four Parliaments, and then prorogued them, because each had dared to demand redress against the King's illegal acts---redress against the extortion of gifts and forced loans, against arbitrary committment to prison, and against the Star Court, which had absolute power, with no appeal. For eleven years then, Charles governed without a Parliament, taxed his people without representation, and confined in the Tower those who questioned his right to do these things. The people of England rose in one mighty protest against such tyranny, and by 1642 civil war was raging.

Parliament overturned all of Charles' encroachments on the law:-- his courts, Star Chamber and others, were abolished; his chief minister was declared a traitor and beheaded. The Puritans in Parliament called a convention to settle the religious questions before the nation. This "Westminster Assembly" established the Presbyterian Church. The war became one of stern religious fanaticism against Cavalier loyalty---the middle classes against the aristocracy and its servitors. Under Cromwell, the Puritans prevailed, called Charles to court for treason, and sent him to the scaffold (1649). England was declared a Republic, and its duration is referred to as the Commonwealth. This dream was too far advanced for the times---the realm broke up into endless factions, and finally a majority agreed to reinstate the monarchy, and called back Charles II, son of Charles I (1660).

It was in the period 1630-1640, when the people of England despaired of ever obtaining freedom of conscience, when the tyranny of the King made the political future of the realm look dubious, and during the economic distress which followed the relatively prosperous times of the Elizabethan Era, that there was a veritable flood of emigration to the Colonies. In 1634 the Lords Commissioners for the Colonies forbade the emigration of "subsidy men" (those of some property, and subject to certain taxes) without a special license, and of all beneath that without evidence of having taken the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy. Lists of the passengers on ships going to New England were headed by the statement --"These parties have brought certificates from the Minister and Justices of the Peace of their conformitie to ye orders and discipline of ye Church of England. They have taken the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy." Few Englishmen would balk at an oath of allegiance, but many, and particularly the Puritans, did balk at declaring the King to to be head of the Church. To get to the Colonies, they had to make what arrangements they could for their transportation, and were particular to leave in England no record of their crossing, for to be caught leaving England without having taken the Oath meant confiscation of property, or worse. Thus it is that there is no documentary evidence of the English origin of many of the early emigrants to the American Colonies.

Emigration to Massachusetts was particularly inviting, as the land granted to the Council for New England, the successor to the Plymouth Company, was conferred in absolute property, with unlimited powers of legislation and government. "The leading emigrants to Massachusetts were of the brotherhood of men who, by force of social consideration, as well as of intelligence and resolute patriotism, moulded the public opinion and action of England in the first half of the seventeenth century. While the larger part stayed at home to found, as it proved, the short-lived English republic, and to introduce elements into the English constitution which had to wait another half-century for their secure reception, another part devoted themselves at once to the erection of free institutions in the distant wilderness." (Great Events by Famous Historians, XI 163.)

From a first start at Salem (after Plymouth), additional towns were authorized:-- at Charlestown, Boston, Dorchester, Watertown and others, doubtless including Dedham, some ten miles southwest of Boston.

A resume of some of the early ordinances gives a picture of the times in the Colonies:

Ministers received £30 a year and a house.

"Carpenters, bricklayers, sawyers and thatchers should not take above two shillings a day, nor should any man give more, under pain of ten shillings to taker and giver."

The wages of common labor were fixed at six pence a day, and those of mechanics who were employed in building at sixteen pence, in addition to "meat and drink." (Charlestown)

A bounty was offered for the killing of wolves to be paid by the owners of domestic animals in proportion to the stock they owned.

A man was ordered to be whipped for fowling on the Sabbath, another for stealing a loaf of bread.

A man was expelled from the Colony, his property forfeited, and his house burned, for the satisfaction of an Indian from whom he had stolen a canoe.

The town of Dedham had its beginning at some time about 1636, as its Town Records start in that year. There is extant in Dedham a house built in that same year (see [8] Abigail Dean). The first Town Records quote the Dedham Covenant, the essentials of which are:

(1) ---promise to profess and practice one truth, according to the most perfect rule the foundation of which is everlasting love.

(2) ---labor to keep us from all contrary minded.

(3) ---differences to be decided by two or three referees.

(4) ---those having lots are to pay "rates" (taxes) as shall be imposed upon them ratedly. All subject to orders ---as may be made for---(public welfare, etc.)

The Covenant was signed by 125 men.

King Philip's War, 1675-6. This open warfare with the Indians started in the region of Naragansett Bay, but soon spread through most of the settled eastern part of Massachusetts. The initial advantage was all to the Indians, and they overran all of the settlements at some distance out in the woods from Boston, destroying most of them, including Lancaster, some 35 miles west of Boston. The nearest Indian approaches to Boston were the assaults on Medfield (20 miles) and Weymouth (18 miles). Dedham, at 10 miles, apparently suffered no war damage. The Town Records frequently mention tax levies during 1675 and 1676 "for the warr." As the Colonists retired on Boston, and as the alarm and terror spread, sufficient military force was organized finally to give the Indians a sound thrashing, their settlements were destroyed, their food supplies seized, and some two thousand of them were killed. The popular rage against them was excessive. Death or slavery was meted out to any concerned in shedding English blood. An Act was passed in 1722 (note the time after the war) offering a bounty of £100 for the scalp of a male Indian over twelve years of age, and one half that sum for a woman or child, dead or alive.

Following the war, the remainders of the tribes drifted west and joined the Connecticut River Indians. Thus the western frontier fell back to central Massachusetts, then in the following years up the Connecticut River into New Hampshire and Vermont. By 1800 settlers were streaming into and through New York, to western Pennsylvania and Ohio, by 1850 the whole Mississippi valley was filling up and soon even the Rockies were no bar to the land-hungry people surging westward.

Starting at Dedham, the venturesome young men of the particular Dean family which is the subject of this book spread out first to the territory surrounding Boston, later they went to the frontier in central Massachusetts, then up into New Hampshire and Vermont, then to New York state, to Pennsylvania, and Ohio, one populous branch settling at Rockport (now Rocky River), just west of Cleveland, others moved on to Michigan, Illinois and other midwestern states, then to the Mountain states and the Pacific Coast. At the present time the family is spread from Iran to Hawaii.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME DEAN

Back in very early times it was customary to give a person only one name. When it was required that each family adopt a surname, the meaning was obvious for such names as Baker, Carpenter, Smith, etc. As the word "dean" meant a valley, the surname "Dean" or any of its variants in spelling, meant a dweller in the valley. And since most of the arable land was in the valleys, it is natural to find many unrelated families of this name.

EARLY DEAN FAMILIES IN NEW ENGLAND

Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, which covers the early emigrants to the American Colonies, lists eighteen men, or families, of the name Dean, Deane, Deen, etc., who came to New England, to wit:--

(All towns in Mass., except where noted.)
Daniel, of Concord
George, of Salem, and son Joseph
James, of Stonington, Conn., now claimed to be a son of Walter, of Taunton. (Dean Family Descendants from Ezra Dean of Plainfield, Conn. Arthur D. Dean, 1903)
John, of Dedham
John, of Dover
John, of Salem
John, of Taunton, brother of Walter
John, of Woburn
Jonas, of Scituate
Samuel, of Stamford
Samuel, of Lancaster
Stephen, of Plymouth
Thomas, of Boston
Thomas, of Charlestown (mariner)
Walter, of Taunton, brother of John
William, of Woburn
William, of Boston (1668), later of Dedham

ORIGIN OF JOHN DEAN OF DEDHAM

For some of the above list, records exist showing that they came from some part of England. John of Dedham is not so fortunate in this respect, as nothing is definitely known of his origin and parentage. He is first mentioned in the Dedham Town Records late in 1672, and his birth is placed as approximately 1650, but where he was born, and to what parents, can only be conjectured.

John Ward Dean, for many years connected with the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and himself a descendant of Thomas Dean, of Boston, wrote a partial genealogy of John Dean of Dedham at some time about 1885-90, and he has summarized the conjectures as to the origin of John of Dedham as follows: (Inserts by the present writer.)

"John and William Dean appear to have gone to Dedham at about the same time, but whether they were brothers, or even relatives, has not been ascertained. (See page 215)

"One of John's descendants, [128] Luke, states that he had understood his family to be of English descent. Another, [219] Uriel, has told that it was of Scotch descent, and a third, [121] Mark, understands that his ancestors were from Denmark. This belief might stem from a family by the name of Dane, who later changed the name to Dean. The first tradition is probably correct.

"Other traditions in the family indicate a possible connection with the Taunton Deans, though of what precise relationship is not known. Too much reliance should not, however, be placed upon these traditions. Mr. Jacob Dean, of Mansfield, Mass., living in 1847, remembers being told in 1802 by Rev Dr. Samuel Dean, of Portland, Me., that he had never been able to trace any connection between the Taunton family, to which they both belonged, and the family at Dedham. Dr. Dean was born in Dedham, and his statement is entitled to consideration. According to Mrs. Dean, widow of [47] Seth Dean, who was living at Wrentham in 1846, aged about 83, the tradition in the Dedham family is that there were three brothers who came from England and settled in different parts of this country. One settled in Dedham, one in Taunton, and one in some part of Connecticut. She has the impression that the brother who settled in Connecticut was named William. (William did leave Dedham in the early days, located for a time in Rohoboth, Mass., and then went to Lebanon, Conn.) She has heard that her husband's father [15] Ebenezer (born 1714) said that the Dedham Deans were connected with those of Taunton. [62] Balch Dean, of Shrewsbury, who was living in 1846, writes 'This coincides with the story I have heard from my ancestors.' He also writes 'As tradition has it, I have understood that three brothers came to this country, but at what time, or what their given names were, I never understood. One settled in Dedham, one in Taunton or Norton, and one in Connecticut.----I have often heard it said there was a Francis among them, but whether he was left in England, or came over here, I never knew. My oldest brother now living, was named for him. There was a traditionary story that the Deans were possessed of a valuable property, the title to which had not become obsolete. It strikes me to be a plantation in Jamaica, but I am not sure. It was thing often talked upon when I was young, but I know nothing further.' [Reg 39-135 and 141 show John and Thomas Dean among the early (1638) inhabitants of Barbados, and Capt. William Dean as the first Governor there.]

"There is evidently some error mixed with these traditions. It cannot be that John of Dedham was a brother of John of Taunton, as it was not the custom to give two brothers precisely the same Christian name. (Unless the older dies before the younger is born.) The disparity of ages between Walter of Taunton and John of Dedham would render it improbable that they were brothers. (This interval is some 30-35 years.) The most plausible conjecture I can form is that John of Dedham may have been a son of the younger brother of John and Walter, who, according to tradition in the Taunton family, settled in Connecticut. This supposition is made more plausible by the following circumstance: In 1716 a Nathaniel Dean, of Norwich, Conn., married a wife in Dedham, by the name of Fisher, who may have been a sister (but actually daughter of a second cousin) of the wife of John's son Jeremiah. If Nathaniel was a nephew or other relative of John all is plain. He may have visited his uncle or relative and there have become acquainted with his future wife. Unless there was a connection, what led him to Dedham?" Although this relationship is possible, it seems quite improbable---that in the above time interval a younger brother would be born, grow up, emigrate to Connecticut, get married and become the father of John of Dedham.

Whether or not there was an early connection between the Dedham and Taunton Deans, such a connection was established in 1921 by the marriage of [2100] Ethel May Dean, a lineal descendant of John of Dedham to Seth Blake Dean, a lineal descendant of Walter of Taunton.

[587] Seneca Dean, born in 1816, writing his recollections of family history at the age of 83, states "The first of the name who came to this country were three brothers who came from Yorkshire, England. One settled in Dedham, Mass., one in or near Concord, N.H., and the other in New York, near Albany." At the time this reported emigration took place, we might question whether there was much "near Albany" to attract a settler, but---here again---the three brothers. Seneca's mention of Concord gives a slight tinkle on the bell--perhaps Daniel of Concord, but in Mass., was the father of John of Dedham, and perhaps Seneca's father, Daniel, of Petersham, Mass., was named after him.

Nowhere in the traditions above related is there a trace of the one which came down to the present writer in a letter written by [983] Cecil Deane, in which he states: "At a time shortly after the Civil War I was searching among some old documents in the Colonial Society of Virginia--at Richmond--when I found a yellow parchment on which was engrossed in long primer letters a fac-simile of the trial and death warrant of Charles I of England, and on the margin appeared the names of the members of Parliament who signed the warrant, and among them (each attested by his seal) was the name of Ri Deane. It impressed itself more fully because I remember my Grandfather Deane stating that his forefather was a member of the Long Parliament, and at the time of the Restoration he escaped to the colony of Massachusetts and became a member of the Plymouth colony."

It did not require much research to find that the Ri Deane above referred to was a Major General and Admiral under Cromwell, a member of the Long Parliament, and a member of the Commission appointed from that Parliament to bring to trial for treason King Charles I. Truly, he would be a magnificent ancestor of whom to boast, but any thought that John Dean of Dedham might be a son, or even a grandson, of Richard was laid in the dust by one look at the genealogy of the said Richard, for his two children were girls, and neither one of them married a Dean.

However, while studying the records of "Ri" Deane in a library in Richmond, your scribe did note in passing that there was a John Dean in the Long Parliament, not a General, nor an Admiral, perhaps just an ordinary citizen doing his duty as he saw it, and if he were of middle age in 1649, when he was noted as being in Parliament, he could possibly have been the father of John of Dedham, and perhaps of two other boys required to fill out the "three brother" legend. An interesting question for future study!

CHRONOLOGY

In the introduction by its publishers, it is stated in the book of Dedham Vital Records: "In changing dates in this volume prior to Sept. 2, 1752, to correspond to the new style (Gregorian calendar, as distinguished from the old style, Julian calendar) "it will be necessary to add ten days to the date given for all dates on or before Feb. 29, 1700, and eleven days for all dates on and after March 1 of that year.

"Prior to the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, the year had different days of beginning, in Great Britain and the Colonies--the civil, ecclesiastical or legal year began with March 25th, and the historical year with Jan. 1.

"Here the common practice is followed of double dating, that is, of giving two years for dates between January 1 and March 25,--for example, February 10, 1721-22, meaning February 10 of the year 1722 which began with January 1, and February 10 of the year 1721 beginning with the previous March 25. Double dating continues till Sept 2, 1752, when the New Style was adopted by Parliament."

In the earliest years reported in the Dedham Records, dates were stated as, for example,--"the 10th (day) of the 3rd (month)", meaning June 10th. In this book, all such dates are expressed in terms of the later calendar designations.

NUMBERING SYSTEM

In this book, each person of name Dean is given a personal number. For the head of a family, the number is placed at the center, above the description of the family. The number of the generation is given as a superscript above the name of the father, and likewise above the name of the first child. The personal numbers of the children are placed at the left, and an asterisk (*) preceding the number indicates that the person is the head of a family listed later, in the next generation. For such, only the birth date and the name of the wife are given, more detailed data are included with the later listing as head of a family. The families of the Dean girls are placed with their first listing, alternate letters and numbers being used to indicate the successive generations.

The index at the end of the book gives the personal number in preference to a page number, as being a quicker reference to the desired person. For convenience in locating a given personal number in the body of the text, the page numbers are followed by two numbers: the first is the number of the father of the family with which the page starts, -2, -3 --- for second page, third page, etc., of this family; and the next number is that of the child of this father represented by the first entry on the page.

In the context, a personal number preceding a name is the number assigned in this genealogy, one following a name is quoted from some other genealogy referring to the name.

JOHN DEAN IN THE TOWN OF DEDHAM

John Dean is first mentioned in the Town Records of Dedham on Dec 3, 1672---"The yonge men be called that care might be taken for their settlement according to law:--- John Dean is allowed to soiourn with John Gay---"

1675 Asked for and received 1 1/2 acre of swamp meadow.

1677 Granted timber to make a cider press.

1681 Received 10 shillings bounty for "kiling a woulfe."

Appointed one of two to "inspect Boyes guilty of miscarriage of conduct in church and in case they are found refrectory to bring them before the selectmen."

Granted timber for frame and boards for a house. (New house, perhaps, had three children at the time.)

1682 Appointed one of the Fence Viewers. Granted 2s 9d for "killing hawkes and blakbirds."

1685 One of two appointed to "yoake and ring" hogs not within fence. (To prevent them from rooting out crops.)

Chosen as Constable. (Principal duty apparently the collection of "rates", or taxes, levied by the Selectmen.)

1686 Again appointed to yoke and ring hogs.

1694 One of four to complete "running the line" between Dedham and Natick.

1698 One of two who ran the line between the town and the land of Amos Fisher.

1699 One of a "Commite of three to goe to the Leu^{t} Gou-erner & to Indevour the full Settlement of the Natick lines."

Reported survey of 3400 acres of land to be "layed out by lot" for public drawing.

1700 One of four to "find our Westerly bounds on the North side of the Charles River and to agree with the Indians if they can upon reasonable termes." In 1702 he received £3-1-6 for work on this project.

From here to 1708 the name of John Dean appears frequently as Surveyor, Constable, etc., and one payemnt for his work as Surveyor is recorded in May 1728, the spring following his death.

Judging from the descriptions of land appearing in contemporary deeds, it would appear that this surveying was in the nature of "viewing and reporting," rather than laying out with compass and chain.

John made a deposition in 1685 in which he states his age as 35 ([127c5] Cassie K. Turner) thus establishing the date of his birth as 1649 or 1650.

"John Dean, carpenter, and Jeremiah Dean, husbandman," were appointed as administrators of the estate of [5] Joseph Dean. This reference, the cider press above referred to, and his disposal by will of "carpentry and husbandry" tools, definitely establishes him as a carpenter, as well as a farmer.

The maiden name of John's wife, Sarah, has not been established. There is an unconfirmed supposition that she was Sarah Farrington (born Mar 7, 1652 DR 5) based on propinquity of residence in Dedham. However, a search of the probate records of the parents of all the Sarahs born in Dedham from 1639 to 1663 shows for each case some one of the following negative results: (1) no probate record, (2) no list of heirs, (3) no mention of a daughter Sarah, or (4) marriage to some other than a Dean.

We cannot resist the temptation to quote two items from the Dedham Town Records:

Aug 23, 1733 "By order of ye Select-men ye wife of Jarviss Pike went home to her Husband again."

Mar 27, 1746 "Born to Samuel and Mary Onion, a daughter Olive." It seems that even Nature smiled upon the Town--that an onion could bring forth an olive.

JEREMIAH[3] DEAN II b Dedham May 13, 1713 (DR 39) s [6] Jeremiah and Mary (Fisher) Dean m-1 at Dedham May 13, 1741 MARY FISHER [136] dau Jeremiah and Deborah (Richards) Fisher (DR 43). She was a distant cousin of the mother of her husband, was b Dedham May 3, 1717 (DR 43) and d Dedham Aug 6, 1747 (DR 76) Jeremiah j ch Nov 3, 1745 (DC 83) He m-2 Nov 23, 1750 REBEKAH SCOTT of Dedham (DR 89) who was b Glasgow, Scotland (HHS) She d Charlestown, N.H., May 28, 1813 aged 80 (GSR Charlestown Cemetary) This places her birth at about 1723. One reference quotes Jeremiah as an "innholder", another indicates that at one time he was the owner of some square miles of land south of Worcester, Mass. [587] Seneca Deane, in writing his family recollections in 1900, says that Jeremiah II was "during the Revolution, identified with the Tory side of the cause, and like the rest of the tribe, was tenacious of his opinion to the last. And yet he belonged to The Washington Society, an order, as its name implies, pledged to uphold the government. I have seen its Constitution, and know that a member in good standing could not own allegiance to any government other than the Republic of the United States." No doubt, his property holdings inclined him to a conservative attitude, till the matter was finally settled.

From the records herewith quoted, as well as from other references, it is concluded that Jeremiah removed from Dedham to Petersham, Mass., and later to Charlestown, N.H., in the southwestern part of the state, and on the Connecticut River. His youngest child whose birth was recorded in Dedham was Nancy, born July 11, 1771. The birth of his grandson Daniel, on Oct 4, 1771, is credited to "Jeremiah, Jr. and Abigail Dean," indicating that Jeremiah II and Jeremiah III were both present in the town, Petersham. Polly's marriage at Petersham in 1783 indicates that her father may have been living there then. The Census of 1790 shows but one Jeremiah Dean present in Petersham. Neither this census for Charlestown, nor a 1792 list of taxpayers for that town includes a Jeremiah Dean, hence it is probable that he died some time between 1783 and 1790. He did not leave a will, nor did his estate go through the Probate Court--undoubtedly he lived with his son Aaron, during his last years and had disposed of all his property before he passed on. His wife, Rebekah (d 1813) is buried with the family of their son Aaron in the Cemetary at Charlestown, but Jermiah's final resting place is elusive.

ABIGAIL FALES who d Franklin Jan 8, 1826* He d Franklin, noted as "Capt.", Jan 15, 1820* They apparently lived in Wrentham up to about 1775, then moved to Franklin, to which place his father had come, from Dedham. A History of Shrewsbury (AHW) tells that they came to that place about 1790 and settled on the place where Balch Dean "now" (1847) lives. In 1792 they opened their house as a small pox hospital, as the spread of that "distemper" was general over the town. (AHW)

Rev. War service: Ebenezer Dean, also given as "Jr.", of Wrentham was a Lieutenant in Capt. John Boyd's Co. of Minute Men, Col. Greaton's Regt., assembled and marched on the alarm of Apr 19, 1775, served 5 days; also as Lieut. in the same Co., return of officers in Gen. After learning the English branches in the Town schools, Oliver studied Latin in the Framingham Academy and Greek with Rev. Dr. Crane of Northbridge. Then he began the study of medicine with Dr. James Mann of Wrentham, and continued with Dr. W. Ingalls of Boston, receiving his degree of M.D. from the Mass. Medical Society in 1809. He practiced in Boston till 1812, when he removed to Medway, but his health failed under his labors there, and in 1817 he left his profession to assume the superintendency of the Medford Cotton Mills, a position which he held for nine years. In 1826 he was chosen Superintendent of the then young Amoskeag Mfg. Co., of Manchester, N.H., and continued there for eight years as Superintendent, and till the time of his death as President. Having accumulated a fortune by skillful management, he retired to a farm in Framingham from 1834 to 1844. He resided in Boston till 1851, when he purchased part of a farm in Franklin, living there till his death in 1871.
He devoted the last years of his life chiefly to plans for the education of youth, which resulted in the founding of an Academy in Franklin which bears his name, to which he gave some $250,000 while living, and an estimated $300,000 by will. He also made bequests to Tufts College, of which institution he was President of the Board of Trustees. (Reg 26-103)

This reference speaks of her as "widow" of Joseph, apparently an error. Adm of estate of Joseph (NR 5443) dated May 5, 1829 lists heirs: "no widow, Molly French, deceased" (Mary), "Sarah Holmes and Naamah Draper."

Revolutionary War service: MSSRW lists three different references to service by "Joseph Dean, of Dedham," in one case the name being given as Joseph Dean, Jr., Whether the "Jr." is used to denote a Joseph, son of Joseph, or to indicate the younger of two contemporary Josephs is not known by your scribe. Neither can he identify a particular Joseph with the name of the Parish of Dedham given in two of the references. Hence all three of the references are here quoted for such information as the reader may glean therefrom:

Apr 24, 1788 s Daniel and Jemima (Stow) Kelley. Datus' uncle Joshua Stow was one of the original owners in the Western Reserve. For a wedding trip Datus and Sarah went out into the western wilds, in Ohio. Her brother Chester and sister Cynthia went with them--by team to Sackett's Harbor, boat to Port Erie, team to Chippewa, and the schooner "Zephyr" of "45 tons burden" from Blackrock to Cleveland, where they arrived in the middle of October, 1811, having visited Niagara Falls en route. Datus and his bride kept house in a warehouse at the mouth of the Cuyahoga River for a few weeks, pending the selection of a farm. They settled on land about a mile west of Rocky River, for which they paid $3.18 per acre. Here their neighbors were mostly friendly Indians. Traveling to and from Cleveland was mostly in canoes and small boats, as the roads were very bad. Mails were carried twice a week between Cleveland and Detroit on horseback. For twenty years they pioneered in surveying and building roads, clearing up the land, and raising the necessary crops. In 1833 Datus and his brother Irad commenced the purchase, parcel by parcel, of what is now Kelley's Island. In 1836 they moved there and spent the rest of their lives developing the island. They built school houses and a town hall, hotel, docks and boats, and built up a business in shipping limestone, cedar posts and pork. The Kelley Island Lime and Transport Co. grew out of this beginning. Just this last year (1956) one of their original boats, the Island Queen, was sold to the wreckers, after many years of service in transporting passengers and freight. Sarah Dean mothered the Island community and was a good friend to all, and nursed and doctored them tirelessly. Truly a pioneer.

The census of 1790, for Petersham, reports the family of Jeremiah Dean (III):

"Males, 16 or over	2 (Jeremiah and Daniel)
Males, under 16	1 (Jeremiah IV)
Females	2"(the mother and Rachel)

It is evident that the first child died young, as a later daughter was given the same name. We believe that the next three children also died young, as no further records have been found concerning them. [587] Seneca Dean stated, in his memoirs of the family, that Jeremiah (III) removed from Dedham to Petersham "somewhere about 1765." We are inclined to place this date as some 4 or 5 years later, as witness the dates of birth of Jesse and the second Abigail in the Dedham Records. Seneca further comments on the move of Jeremiah to Petersham, "where he commenced opening a farm the soil of which was well supplied with rocks and timber of various kinds---In the construction of his house he was somewhat aristocratic, as it was made of hewn timber, squared 12 by 6 inches."

A deed, dated Apr 17, 1799, Jeremiah Dean to Daniel Dean, (Worcester Co. Records 136-217) transfers land of about the same description as Daniel later sold as "being the farm on which I now live." This deed was signed by Jeremiah Dean only, no wife's signature therewith. At this time Jeremiah II had a wife, and Jeremiah III was a widower, whence it evolves that the deed was made by Daniel's father, doubtless to serve the same purpose as a later will. (None such recorded.)

A Petersham tax list of 1814 notes: "Jeremiah Dean and son, 100 acres, a small house and barn, $1188, northwest part of town, on the Turnpike."

JOHN[4] DEAN, housewright, (JWD) b Dedham Nov 29, 1748 (DR 79) s [32] Joshua and Mary (Macnab) Dean m May 4, 1769 (Dec 12, 1769--DR 109?) MARY MORSE dau Reuben Morse (DC 171) She d Sept 18, 1776, aged 47 (DC 189) This places her birth at about 1729. The notices, both of the marriage and the intent, Apr 5, 1769(DR 122) name the groom as "John Dean, Jr." Your humble scribe has spent many days of fruitless search and effort trying unsuccessfully to attach Mary Morse as wife to [38] John Dean, s [11] John Dean, he being the only contemporaneously available "John Dean, JR." Such an arrangement leads inevitably to a conflict between the Dedham Records and the stipulations of probate papers, which disappears for the genealogical configurations here given. As [38] John Dean was born within a year before Sept 14, 1748, the title "Junior" above attributed to [103] John Dean may have indicated merely his later birth, and was probably applied to him as a designation to distinguish these two men in the life of the town. Designations "first", "second" and "third" appear in some of the probate records, apparently for similar reasons, rather than for genealogical significance.

Revolutionary War service. "John Dean, Jr.", of Dedham served as Pvt. in Capt. William Bullard's Co., of the South Parish, Col. Heath's Regt., which marched on the alarm of Apr 19, 1775, service 6 days. (MSSRW)

JEREMIAH[4] DEAN, farmer, b Dedham Feb 17, 1756 (DR 88) s of [32] Joshua and Mary (Macnab) Dean "Rem to New Hampshire and had three wives"(JWD) This is confirmed by the records below from Unity, N.H. and by a mortgage deed which Joshua gave to "Joshua Dean of Royalston, Mass." on July 17, 1810 to secure a loan. (Cheshire Co. Rec 59-542) This Joshua was undoubtedly his brother, [102], which see. Jeremiah m-1 MILLICENT ------, m-2 JEMIMA ------, who d on Jan 27, 1803 at Unity, m-3 at Unity July 4, 1803 BETSEY BUCKMAN. There are deeds, signed by Jeremiah and Betsey, his wife, (ibid) made in 1813 and 1819. He was Elected Highway Supervisor in 1801. The census of 1790 lists Jeremiah Dean as head of a household at Unity, with 2 males not yet 16 years old, and two females. If this count were not actually made till April, 1791, it agrees with the family count as quoted below for the Records of Unity, N.H.

MSSRW credits a Jeremiah Dean of Dedham with service in the Revolutionary War--of the three possible candidates in point of name, viz.: [30] Jeremiah II, [82] Jeremiah III, and [106] above, only the latter still lived in Dedham in 1775, and must therefore be the man. He served as Pvt. in Capt. Joseph Guild's Co., of Minute Men, Col. Greaton's Regt., assembled on the alarm of Apr 19, 1775, served 13 days; also in Capt. Joseph Guild's Co., Col. Wm. Heath's Regt. (36th), Co. return dated Fort No. 2, Oct 5, 1775, reported enlisted May 10, 1775; also Capt. Guild's Co., Col John Greaton's Regt., certificate of service in support of a bounty coat dated Cambridge Dec 18, 1775; also as Corp. in Capt. Aaron Guild's Co., Lemuel Robson's (Robinson?) Regt., served 14 days, roll dated Roxbury and endorsed "service at Dorchester Heights and vicinity."

DANIEL[5] DEAN b Petersham, Mass., Oct 4, 1771 s [82] Jeremiah III and Abigail (Draper) Dean (Phm R) d at the home of his son Erastus in Delmar Twp., near Wellsboro, Pa., Oct 10, 1866, aged 95 years. m at Petersham Dec 22, 1800 (FB-Phm R) JERUSHA HOUGHTON [832] who was b Petersham May 9, 1776 (Houghton Gen) dau Pharez and Jemima (Southworth) Houghton of Petersham. She d Petersham Feb 21, 1846. (GSR) Her father, Pharez Houghton, was a Pvt. in Capt. John Wheeler's Co. of Minute Men who marched on the alarm of Apr 19, 1775, service 12 1/2 days; also in Capt. Wing Spooner's Co., Col. Cushing's Regt., service 1 month, 12 days, with the Northern Army. (MSSRW)

Born in the early days of the town life of Petersham, Daniel received but little formal schooling, however, the few letters from his pen which have come down to the present exhibit a good hand and an easy style of expression, and picture a man devoted to his farm, his home and his family. His son Erastus received an "academic education" and Seneca schooled himself in medicine, hence it may be said that he either provided or inspired more education for his sons than he had had himself. He brought his bride to the home occupied by his father and himself, and later came also the widowed mother of his wife, whereupon, the parents decided to get married also. After the death of his wife in 1846, Daniel continued to operate his farm till 1851, when, at the age of 80, he sold most of his effects, loaded the rest on a "lumber" wagon, and drove from central Massachusetts to north-central Pennsylvania, to the home of his son Erastus, near Wellsboro, Pa., where he died in 1866 at the ripe age of 95 years.

He was commissioned an Ensign in the 3rd Regt., 2nd Brigade, 7th Div., Mass. Militia on June 29, 1804, advanced to Lieutenant Apr 26, 1808, and promoted to Captain on Apr 2, 1811, in which rank he was discharged at his own request on Feb 13, 1812 (Mass. Mil. Rec.)

Daniel and Jerusha had nine children, all born in Petersham, only three of them living past age 21. The children always spelled their name Deane, being so firm in making the change that they even added the final "e", in a different ink, to Daniel's name in his family Bible.

ERASTUS PUTNAM[6] DEANE b Petersham, Mass., Nov 26, 1809
s [203] Daniel and Jerusha (Houghton) Dean(e)* Died from a fall in Corning, N.Y., Sept 22, 1881 m in Delmar Twp., Tioga Co., Pa., near Wellsboro, June 29, 1837 MARY ELIZABETH MCEWEN, dau John and Elizabeth McEwen of Delmar. She was born in Philadelphia, Pa., on Jan 12, 1819 and died in Wellsboro Apr 30, 1879

After finishing the "common school" (now called grade school) in Petersham, Erastus took an "academic" course of study, with particular emphasis on the art and practice of surveying. In search of better health he went to the Allegheny hills, landing in Wellsboro, Pa., in April 1834. He took charge of the Wellsboro Academy for most of that year, then started a career of surveying which ultimately took him into most of the northern counties of Pa. He taught in the common school of Wellsboro in 1835-7, and acquired during this time a farm on a flat hill top still known as "Deane Hill." He gave a corner of his farm for the location of the Township's "little red school house," and both he and his brother-in-law, Israel Stone, were among the teachers in this school. It was said of him that he had a remarkable memory for dates, data, and locations encountered in his surveys, and he was much sought as a witness in court cases involving land boundaries. He served two terms as County Surveyor, 1836-9 and 1859-62. In 1874 he left the farm and built a large house on the outskirts of Wellsboro, where he lived till his death in 1881.

Erastus and Mary had nine children, all born in Delmar:

980 Cecilia Augusta[7] b July 3, 1838 d Auburn, Wash., Jan 5, 1925 m Henry Bacon as his second wife, his first wife having been a younger sister of Augusta's mother. This couple were true pioneers, moving ever Westward, for new lands to subdue. They settled first near Alton, Ill. Augusta taught school there. About 1863 they removed to Alma, Wis. Augusta taught school in the nearby town of Neilsville. Between 1879 and 1887 they were located in Northfield, Wis. Removing thence, they operated a farm in South Dakota, just across the line from Havana, N.D. In 1906 they, with their son Earl, went to Algoma, Wash., for seven years, thence to Seattle and Auburn.

SENECA FISHER DEANE[6] b Petersham, Mass., Nov 21, 1816 s [203] Daniel and Jerusha (Houghton) Dean(e)* d Carleton, Neb., Jan 19, 1901 m Petersham Aug 18, 1842 MARY MARGARET HARRIS, b Queensbury, N.Y., Jan 17, 1822 and d Lindsborg, Kans., Apr 5, 1908.

From early youth, Seneca read widely in history and literature, and was very voluble in speech and writing. What he believed, he believed in strongly and persistently. With great determination, he educated himself in the practice of eclectic medicine, learning the millwright trade, apparently, for the furtherance of this object. He practiced first in Alden, N.Y., then a year in Sheboygan, Wis. Apparently he failed to orient himself with the compass on arrival there, and he left because "the sun persisted in rising in the west", and returned to Alden. In 1857 he went again to Wis., living in several towns near Janesville. In 1871 he moved to Nebr., first at Fairmount, York Co., and in 1878 at Carleton, where he firmly took root.

Of abolitionist views in war times, he transported many an escaping slave at night, when the authorities saw only a doctor driving to see a patient. For years he held spiritualist views, and many a seance was held in his home. In this home, he ruled with an iron hand--or at least until he struck fire from his wife, as per family legend. He was not a good business man--wouldn't even send out a bill--and once in a while he would look over his books and write "Stinker" after the names of some persistent delinquents. Thus he was not overly blessed with the world's goods, but after a lifetime of service to humanity he doubtless passed over the river with a good credit balance.

This marriage later ended in divorce. m-2 Aug 12, 1896 Dr. Ithamar Stevens, of Valparaiso, Neb., grad of St. Louis Medical College, was practicing in Raymond, Neb., at the time of his death in 1905. Between her two marriages, Florence taught school, first in rural schools, then in Valparaiso and Carleton. Following Dr. Stevens' death, she reverted to teaching, was later Matron at Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kan., the while caring for her mother, who was in very poor health. To cap the climax of a vigorous life, at the age of 70 she homesteaded a 640-acre tract of land near Cuba, N.M., which required her presence on the property during 7 months in each of three years, the construction of a cabin, and certain other improvements. Truly, she feared neither man nor beast, to tackle such an undertaking. In her declining years, she was cared for by her daughter, as above stated, and toward the end, she was almost completely paralyzed.

William was educated in Hamilton Institute, now Colgate University, and was appointed Sept 17, 1832 by the Baptist Missionary Union to be one of their missionaries. In July 1834 he set sail with his first wife, Matilda, from Boston and on Dec 4 of the same year arrived at Amherst, E. Indies. In Jan 1835 they arrived at Singapore en route to Bangkok. While here, Mrs Dean died. A few weeks afterward, Mr. Dean, being in a boat with Rev. Mr. Jones, was attacked by Malay pirates, who threw Mr. Jones into the sea and pierced Mr. Dean with barbed spears. The lives of both were providentially preserved. In July 1835 Mr. Dean went to Bangkok and commenced his labors among the Chinese. His first attempt to preach in the Tay-Chew language was on the last Sabbath in August 1835. In 1845 he returned to the United States, and a year later visited the relations of his (second) wife in England, returning that same year to his labors in his foreign field. Ellen d Wayland May 12, 1905 (MSR) and her husband on Dec 9, 1914 (MSR), confirmed by quotation below:

[1802] Alfred H. Dean writes: "The shoe industry of the Natick and Cochituate area started in 1829, according to the "Natick Observer" of Oct 27, 1860 when Asa Felch decided that, with the opening of the Worcester Turnpike, he could make shoes ahead of time for the Boston market, instead of one pair at a time, on order. [792] Henry C. Dean was apparently the first Dean to have a shoe factory, as the "Natick Citizen" of Dec 6, 1878 mentions six factories in Cochituate, 1860-65, among which was H. C. Dean and Co., 50 cases a day capacity.

"The younger brothers learned the trade and started factories of their own. Charles W. was the most successful and he continued until 1924-5. The only kind of a shoe he made was a heavy work shoe, called a brogan , which was sold mainly to the southern states. There are now no shoe factories in Cochituate, and only one in Natick."(Aug 11, 1954)

Alfred sends another quotation from the Natick Bulletin, dated Dec 11, 1914: "Mr. Henry Colburn Dean, one of our best known citizens, died at his home on Main St. Wednesday morning" (Dec 9, 1914) "at the age of 74 years. He had been in poor health for quite a long time. Mr. Dean was born in Saxonville, but lived here since he was a boy. He had served on the Board of Selectmen at one time and was engaged in manufacturing shoes for the southern trade up to within a few years. He was a widower, his wife having died about seven years ago. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Carrie D. Thayer and Mrs. Frank A. Howe. Four brothers survive him, Albert Dean of Malden, Charles W., Roscoe C. and James O. Dean, also two sisters, Mrs. John E. Stone, and Mrs. Wilbur Stone of North Natick."

Darius acquired his early education in the common schools, and in two Academies. By accompanying his father on surveying work, he learned that profession, which he followed to some extent in later life. He served in Co. A, First Battalion, Pa. Vols. from June 1863 to January 1864 and in Co. K, 207th Regt., Pa. Vols. from August 1864 to June 1865. (Adj. Gen., USA) In the capture of Petersburg he received a wound, which resulted in the loss of his left arm. He was later quite ingenious in doing everything with one hand that he had previously done with two hands. He served three terms as Register and Recorder for Tioga Co,, one term each as School Director, Assessor, Burgess of the Borough, and three terms in the Borough Council, also one term as County Surveyor. After studying law for two years, he was admitted to the bar in 1878. He was a most quiet and even tempered man, but could and did speak and write with logic and from the heart when occasion required.

CECIL AUGUSTUS[7] DEANE, b Delmar Twp., near Wellsboro, Pa., Oct 5, 1844 s [584] Erastus and Mary Elizabeth (McEwen) Deane, d Ft. Collins, Colo., Apr 11, 1925 m at Harrisgurg, Pa., Nov 10, 1870, CLARA R. SHEARER. This marriage ended later in divorce.

Cecil served a year (Mar 1862-Mar 1863) in Co. E, 52nd Regt., Pa. Inf. and later as First Lieut. in Co. A, 1st Battalion Pa. Inf. from June, 1863 to Jan., 1864. (Adj. Gen. USA) Being infected with the "Go West" fever, he went in 1866 to Denver, in what was then Colorado Territory. The last 600 miles of the trip he made driving a four-mule team from the rail head at Atchison, Kans. In Denver he borrowed carpenter tools and worked with them till he obtained the job he wanted--surveying for the City Surveyor. In this work he laid out the lines for the streets in a goodly part of the present city of Denver. He supplemented early training in this work at his father's side by studying Surveying at the Denver Seminary, being one of its ten graduates before it bacame the Univ. of Denver. He was engaged for some years in contract surveying for the US Gov't, later went into the contracting business, constructed irrigation ditches, excavated railway tunnels in the Rockies, at one time, had a large force of men working in the forest getting out railway ties. This location became known as Deansburg.

Either by tongue or pen he was a very voluble raconteur, and he wrote many articles for the press based on his store of knowledge of history, his experiences in the War, and his explorations of the ruins of the Cliff Dwellers in the Southwest. He was an apt selection for custodian of the War Relic and Historical Museum in the State Capitol at Denver. He spent his later years in a small house, which he built himself, in Roggen, Colo., and died at the home of his son, Harold, at Ft. Collins, Colo.

DANIEL MYRON[7] DEANE b Petersham (or Athol), Mass., Oct 11, 1847 s [587] Seneca Fisher and Mary Margaret (Harris) Deane, d Valparaiso, Neb., Feb 7, 1921 m at Galena, Ill., Dec 31, 1870 MARY ANN BOHRER, who was b Galena Sept 11, 1852 and d Valparaiso May 4, 1920

Daniel grew to manhood in Wisconsin, where he learned millwright work under his father. He came to Nebraska in 1871, first to Raymond, then Seward, later to Valparaiso, where he lived for 45 years, with the exception of six years in Lincoln. In his early years he built mills and mill dams all over the state. He built one in Valparaiso, which he later bought, in 1905. A fire destroyed this mill and the associated electric plant, causing him a loss of some $18,000 Served several years on the School Board. Was President of the Nebraska Millers Association for eight years--was called the "Dean of the Nebraska Millers."

Nebraska must be a good place to raise a family, for all the five sons in this one were over six feet tall, nor were the girls very short either.

After attending the public schools of Wayland and a Boston business college, he entered the employ of his father and learned the shoemaking business. In 1897 he was taken into partnership and the firm was known as C. W. Dean and Co., with a factory at Cochituate. In 1910 a modern concrete factory was built at Natick, with double the former capacity. This was sold in 1920, and a brick factory was built on an adjacent lot. The factory made only a heavy work shoe, called a brogan, which was marketed mainly in the southern states. In 1923, after 30 years of manufacturing, the firm retired from the shoe business, and carried on an investment business under the same name.

JAMES ELDON[8] DEAN s [930] Alexander Montgomery and ----- ----- DEAN. Very little is known about this man, outside of a letter he wrote to [127c5] Cassie K. Alexander Montgomery[7] James Eldon[8]. This letter was written from an address of 28 Forest Ave., Cranford, N.J., and indicates a previous address of One Doering Way, Cranford. His cousin, [928a] Ethel K. Sengel, writes (1957) saying that she had lost touch with James some time ago, that he had remarried and was expecting a baby. The school authorities in Cranford give the names of two sons of James as having graduated from the Cranford High School:

ing the vital records of the members of the Dean tribe, from the earliest times down to date. Not only did he find the original records, but he brought back photographic evidence of his finds. The verbatim copy of the will of [1] John Dean as given in the early pages of this book, is a copy of photographs he made. Res 85 Oak St., Weston, 93, Mass.

The compiler of this book has found in Alfred a warm kindred spirit. Although his own genealogical interest runs to ancestors, rather than to descendants, he generously turned to on the latter, and his study and researches have produced the great part of the data on the descendants of [178] Colburn Dean.

This INDEX covers only the descendants of John Dean, of Dedham, with their spouses and spouse's parents (where known), and does not include any persons otherwise mentioned in the introductory parts, or the appendix.

The reference given is to the personal number, unless otherwise stated. Thus the user will have a reference to a specific spot in the genealogy, and will not have to search a whole page for the desired person. The first parenthesis used in a name indicates the maiden name of a wife. A second parenthesis indicates a subsequent marriage, etc. An initial in parenthesis refers to the surname under which listed.

Members of other Dean families living, at various times, in Dedham, Mass. The records here quoted do not indicate any intermarriages between the families here noted and any descendants of [1] John Dean of Dedham. One such marriage is reported earlier in this book--that of [2100] Ethel May Dean to Seth Dean, the latter a direct descendant of Walter Dean (1617-1693 approx.) of Taunton.

I

WILLIAM DEAN, housewright, of ancestry unknown, was a settler in Boston as early as 1668, a resident of Dedham in 1673, and later of Lebanon, Conn. (Reg 93-88) He married in Dedham Oct 13, 1677 Mehitable Wood, dau Ellis and Catharine Wood (DR 17). William served in King Philip's War (FS).

On Feb 3, 1699, Benjamin Mills petitioned the court to order William Dean to return the will of his father, which will had been "left for safe keeping in the hands of William Dean, of Dedham then, but now of Rehoboth." (SR 18-25).

In Rehoboth, Mass., we find a William Dean, carpenter, whose wife's name was Mehitable. He appears at that time about to be leaving Rehoboth, and may have gone to Connecticut, thus explining the tradition releted by [47] Mrs. Seth Dean. (JWD)

From the above notes, and from the date of birth of son Seth in Rehoboth, it appears that William went to Rehoboth between 1686 and 1697, probably nearer the later date.

Children of William and Mehitable, born in Dedham

1. Hannah b Dec 5, 1678 (DR 16)

2. Alice b Oct 18, 1680 (DR 20)

3 Judith b Nov 3, 1682 (DR 18)

4. Josiah b Mar 7, 1684-5 (DR 21) "Probably the Josiah whose gravestone is at Windham, Conn., died Dec 13, 1744, aged 59 years." (JWD) Reg 93-88 mentions Josiah Dean of Lebanon, Conn., where he died after 1750.

5. Abigail b Jan 23, 1686 (DR 22) DR 37 reports the marriage of Abigail Dean to Joseph Fairbanks on May 3, 1716. Although the Fairbanks Genealogy identifies this Abigail as the daughter of William, this is in error, as witness the will of [1] John Dean, previously quoted.

Children of William and Mehitable, born in Rehoboth: (JWD)

6. Seth b Apr 7, 1697

7. William b Oct 12, 1701

The Vital Records of Dedham contain no further reference which can be assigned to any of the above people, thus confirming by inference that the family moved away from Dedham.

The thought propounded by John Ward Dean that John and William Dean may have been brothers seems to originate in the fact that William left Boston between 1668 and 1673 and moved to Dedham, perhaps because his brother (?) was already there.

The above record of William does show a nomadic leaning in his characteristics, whereas the descendants of John all stayed in Dedham, at least for three generations. Perhaps from this it may be inferred that William was born in England, and emigrated to the Colonies. On the other hand, many families show marked differences in characteristics between the sons, and it would be highly speculative to draw any sweeping conclusions on such thin evidence.

Upton is southeast of Worcester; Mansfield, Plympton and Norton nearer to Taunton than to Dedham.
